A $25K journey?

Who says you can't go home again?

Jim Ruland, the eldest son of Kewanna resident, Kate Flanagan, is well on his way with his story "Homeward Bound". And it could be worth $25,000.

Ruland's journey began when he entered Reader's Digest "Your Life..." contest. Entrants were asked to tell the story of their life in 150 words or less. Ruland, who served as a sailor in the U.S. Navy, told his tale of recovery and redemption through a nautical lens.

"When I was in the Navy I drank like a sailor. When I got out of the Navy, I drank like a sailor. You could say I went overboard."

Ruland's charming story caught the eye of the contest's judges and was named an editor's pick. Now he's in the running to win a share of $50,000 in prizes, including a grand prize of $25,000.

Ruland, who lives in San Diego, California, is an advertising copywriter by day and a memoirist by night. He occasionally teaches classes at San Diego Writers, Ink. His favorite classes to teach are Flash Fiction and Micro Memoir: workshops that deal with short forms.

Flanagan isn't surprised that her son's work is getting so much attention. "Some of his best stories are his Navy stories," said the proud mother. That includes one of Ruland's most recent stories, which tells how on a recent visit to San Diego they went in search of the apartment where her son was conceived. Talk about "Homeward Bound!"

If Ruland wins, he hopes to take some time off, do a little traveling and work on his Navy memoir, "Overboard".

Does that include a visit to Kewanna? "Absolutely! I'd be honored to come visit Kewanna and do a reading."

Only stories ranked in the top 100 will be considered for the prize. You can vote by "liking" the Reader's Digest page on Facebook and searching for Ruland's story. Or you can access the story by visiting Ruland's website at www.kwain.blogspot.com/h/ and click on the links to register your vote. You must vote before November 15 and you can vote more than once, but only once a day.

(Editor's note: Kate Flanagan is a fairly new resident of Kewanna who has purchased and renovated a house at the corner of Main and Toner, now commonly called "The Big Blue House".)

LaFollettes enjoy golden anniversary trip

Tom and Barb La Follette celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a trip to Branson, Missouri last week. The trip started out with a stop in St. Roberts, Missouri. It is a frequent stop for the LaFollettes on their way to Branson. While there, they enjoyed a meal at the "Hub," a German restaurant where Barb had rouladen, with red cabbage and spaetzel and Tom had a trip of bratwursts, with sauerkraut and German potato salad broasted with German beer. The restaurant treated them with some German chocolate cake...yummy! They were able to see two shows at the IMAX theatre, "Tornado Alley" and "Ozark's Legacy and Legend." The theatre was amazing. It was 6-stories high, 83 feet wide and has 44 speakers. It was beautiful to see. While in Branson they tried several restaurants among which were Granny's Kitchen and Shorty Small's Barbecue known for its onion loaves, ribs and pulled pork.

If you visit Branson, these are some of the shows they would highly recommend that you try to see. 1) The "Twelve Irish Tenors" are 12 guys who sing with perfect harmony and magical Irish charm. They sing and dance selections from opera to pop to Irish folk songs to jazz. 2) The group "SIX" - six voices, zero instruments, all music, plus all the instrumental sounds come from their voices, for instance one of them reproduces the drums, trumpet and harmonica. They are six of ten brothers who put on one fantastic show and voted entertainment of the year. 3) A gal called "Dalena Dittio". She comes from a performing family and has been in show business since she was three years old. She has a fabulous voice and like most of the acts the LaFollettes saw, was very oriented toward the veterans and those serving now. 4) The "Presleys' Country Jubilee" act is "Branson's Original Show on the Strip" and is a four-generation family affair of country favorites, new country, southern gospel and hilarious comedy. 5) "The Rankin Brothers" - a duo of great talent, who can impersonate all the great performers to the point that you think you are right there at that particular concert from Elvis to Frank Sinatra to the Righteous Brothers and many more.

The News In Brief

Output from factories in the United States was up again in September for the third month in a row. Other good news on the economic front included a hiring increase in September as well as a growth in retail sales. Some economists believe the events signal a rebound in the U.S. economy.

Indiana conservation officers are investigating a hunting accident that occurred Sunday, October 16, on Lake Maxinkuckee. The incident involved three men who were waterfowl hunting; Jason Steiner of Knox lost part of his left index finger in the mishap.

Hoosiers are not totally out of the woods when it comes to the national listeriosis outbreak. Indiana Health Commissioner Dr. Gregory Larkin says they could have eaten infected cantaloupe a month ago and not yet be showing symptoms.

You can buy just about anything online now but when that purchase is a brand new puppy, how much do you really know about where or how that young dog came to be? Thousands of dogs are bred and sold by large-scale commercial breeders often referred to as "puppy mills." These dogs can come with diseases that ring up huge vet bills for the unwitting buyer, according to Melanie Kahn, who is senior director of the Puppy Mills Campaign at The Humane Society of the United States. In 2000, Indiana passed legislation regulating dog breeders, but there are no federal regulations for breeders who sell dogs directly to the public.

Indiana has an excess of unwanted horses. Horse rescue facilities are "maxed out" as people say they can't afford to feed them and the animals grow old or become ill. Dr. Tim Bartlett, director of equine programs for the Indiana Board of Animal Health, says several equine organizations in the state are in the early stages of planning to create a receiving facility in Central Indiana that would take in unwanted horses and evaluate them.

Rules of the universe – according to the cat

Meow. It's me again. The cat. From time to time I take a crack at this column stuff. If you are reading this, today is your lucky day.

The female adult human who usually sits at the computer must have a cramp in her opposable thumbs, because she is not typing. Never fear, I am here! Leave it to me to catapult in and come to the rescue (as usual).

Did I mention I am privy to the rules of the universe? It isn't surprising. Most cats are. Look at the life we live and tell me it's not an omnipotent display of clever, well-planned politics (or at the very least clever, well-planned napping). Since the days of the pyramids, we have been in charge, without you, dear humans, ever suspecting the truth. What about that isn't brilliant?

There's no arguing the fact that cats are the supreme life form. Still, I find humans somewhat endearing. Their furlless bodies and bipedal stance makes them vulnerable and perhaps even charming (in an unattractive sort of way) – and I'm not only saying this because I can reach the high cupboard and open the bag of catnip. There's a soft spot in my heart (albeit a tiny one) for my humans. I'd allow them to continue living in my house even if they didn't pay the mortgage, but don't tell them I said so. I wouldn't want them to get too comfortable with our situation.

I have a few fine nips of feline insight to bestow upon you today. (You can thank me later.) For now, sit tight, and prepare for a glimpse into the highly evolved brain of yours truly. You'll find my rules of the universe keen and clever – if you are paying attention. (Which by the way, most cats are not.)

As an example, consider rule number one: Paying attention is optional – unless you are taking a nap. Then it is not an option. And rule number two: A nap trumps just about anything else in your day.

My list goes on:

If you see opportunity, pounce. If you see any sort of movement, under a blanket or other fabric covering, pounce. When in doubt, pounce – unless you are taking a nap.

Crinkled paper, rolled into a ball is better than any store-bought toy – especially at 2:00 a.m. in any bed where a human is sleeping.

Cleanliness is next to Godliness. Do not let them watch you eat. If a human calls your name, walk in the opposite direction. Unless they are in possession of catnip.

Apathy. Apathy. Apathy. God did not make the sunshine on warm windowsills by accident. The same goes for mice. God loves cats.

Confidence. Above all else, confidence. Walk with your head high, your tail up and your attitude intact.

If you must purr, do so loudly. Humans may pay the rent, but cats own the house. Never let them humiliate you with a bell or a bath.

Dogs are not to be trusted, until you find one you can trust.

When jumping, aim for high places.

Always land with your feet on the ground.

You've only got nine lives; live them well.

When you get to the end of a list, take a nap. Or pounce.

Either way, you're a cat and that makes you a winner. I know I am.

It is on that condescending note I will sign off. Until next time, I remain...

Apathetically yours,

The Cat

Letter To The Editor

Thinking about 2012

Can't believe I am saying this. It seems like yesterday it was 1957!

An election is near. We know this because of all the debates. I have watched some of them and I am not sure I have learned anything new. Maybe I will in the next one.

It is hard to believe the nation is in such a sad state. The President inherited a nation with a budget surplus, a nation at peace, and everyone employed and happy.

How could "he" do such a bad job in such a short time? He had such a great starting line. His reelection should be a cake walk.

He has a Congress that is more than cooperative and with the nation's hopes and dreams guiding all of its actions.

What could have happened? I wonder.

If I lived anywhere near New York City I would be with the next generation on Wall Street. Hope they can recover the "American Dream!"

NIPSCO PROJECTS LOWER NATURAL GAS PRICES THIS WINTER

Strong domestic supply, shale production and storage levels account for low costs

NIPSCO provides welcome news to its customers as market projections indicate that this winter natural gas prices will remain among the lowest in more than 10 years.

Assuming normal winter temperatures, NIPSCO customers are expected to experience a decrease of 7.7 percent in their overall home heating bills this upcoming heating season compared to last winter.

Over the course of the five-month winter heating season - Nov. 1 to March 31 - NIPSCO's average residential customer using a total of 623 therms could expect to pay approximately $461. This compares to $499 for a customer using the same amount of gas during last winter.

"As household budgets remain strapped, we are glad to share favorable news about expected natural gas prices this winter," said NIPSCO CEO Jimmy Staton. "Market prices for natural gas have stabilized because of increased domestic production, onshore shale gas discoveries, and increased storage and transportation capabilities. This stable market outlook will provide a much-needed benefit to homes and businesses across northern Indiana."

Actual bills may vary by customer depending on the home's age and size, number in the household, number and age of gas appliances, thermostat settings and insulation levels.

The cost of natural gas represents the largest portion of customer bills - on average, three-fourths of an overall bill. NIPSCO has no mark-up and makes no profit on the cost of natural gas billed to its customers. Before billing, natural gas commodity costs must be reviewed by the Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission (IURC).

With a history of securing the most reliable supply of natural gas at the lowest cost for customers, NIPSCO's purchasing strategy consists of buying gas in the market from a variety of sources at different times throughout the year, while utilizing gas storage to offset market price volatility.

NIPSCO's gas distribution system provides access to seven interstate pipelines, three on-system storage facilities and eight major North American supply basins.

While NIPSCO cannot control market conditions affecting the price of natural gas, the utility does negotiate the best possible price for the natural gas it purchases for its customers.

Town & Country CHATTER...

By: Julie Brown Ph.: (574) 653-2451

On Saturday, September 17, Elaine Rans along with her son, Larry David, and his wife, Barbara, rode 25 miles in the "2 Rivers on 2 Wheels" bike ride in Logansport. The ride traveled along the El and Wabash Rivers. It took the trio approximately 2 1/2 hours to complete the ride. Elaine said it was a lot of fun and she is ready for another long group ride.

Don and Pauline Scales had a caller Tuesday, Oct. 11. Coming over for a chat was their son, Bruce Scales of Fulton.

Tim Cogdill of Macy and Jane and Jim Teeter of Bluffton visited with Tim and Jane's mother, Ruth Cogdill, Wednesday, Oct. 12. Tim arrived early in the morning and left around noon. Jane and Jim arrived shortly after Tim and remained throughout the afternoon. The Teeters treated Ruth to carry-outs from the Kibitzer for lunch. Everyone had a wonderful day and enjoyed the family get-together.

Pauline and Don Scales had several visitors Thursday, Oct. 13. Joining them for a pleasant chat were their daughters and sons-in-law, Phyllis and Gene Koenig of Rochester and Ellen and Vic Heiden of Columbia City.

Billie Scott and Bo had recent callers. Surprising them with a very nice visit were Rick and Carolyn Metzger of Bainesberry, Tennessee. They had fun catching up on all the happenings in their families and around Lake Bruce. The Metzgers are former residents of Lake Bruce.

Jim Sutton of Fulton enjoyed a visit with Don and Pauline Scales Friday, Oct. 14.

Janet and C.J. Yocum of Rochester had a luncheon guest Saturday, Oct. 15. Joining them for the meal and a visit was Janet's mother, Nancy Evers.

Don and Pauline Scales and their houseguest, Patty Tarver, had a couple of callers Saturday. Stopping by for a wonderful family visit were the Scales' daughter, Linda Garner of here, and Patty's son, Darrell Tarver of South Carolina. Darrell was on his way home from a cross-country delivery to Chicago, Illinois. The group enjoyed lunch together and a nice ride through the autumn countryside.

Jon and Barb Gast hosted their annual pizza party Saturday for family. Joining them were their children and their spouses, Rick and Belinda Weller of LaPorte, Randy and Steve Neidig of Bourbon and Cora Lynn and Howard Clemans of Lake Bruce; their grandchildren and their families, Doug and Kara Sutton, Ethan and Owen, of Goshen, Brent Waggoner of Warsaw and Shelby of Etna Green and Kim Jenkins, Brendan, Riley and Katelyn of Leiters Ford; Barb's siblings, Don Carr and Betty Leazenby; Betty's grandson and his family, David and Erica Leazenby, Zack and Ava; and Shelby's friend, Jessica. Everyone had a wonderful time visiting and helping Belinda and Cora Lynn celebrate their birthdays.

Janet Norris, her brother David Norris, and her daughter Myfawny Schuller, hosted a surprise birthday party last Saturday for their dear friend, Patty Trinca, of South Bend. Tony Trinca had convinced his wife they would be attending a pipelitters union retirement lunch, so her surprised face upon seeing her old friends instead was a real sight. The venue was the charming Corner Cup Café in Walkerton, which offered several items suitable for the vegetarians in the group as well as the best cup of coffee for miles. The delightful morning ended with a round of fresh-from-the-oven apple dumplings and affectionate best wishes for the birthday girl. On the return trip to Kewanee, Janet and David dropped in to see their sister, Ruth Cogdill. They had a great visit with lots of family news to catch up on, including the latest on their niece, Linda Ligocki, who phoned from her new job in North Dakota. A few minutes later came a phone call from their nephew, Mike Cogdill, in Alaska, who used to work with one of Linda's new coworkers in North Dakota. Truly a small world.

Don Carr of Florida left Sunday, Oct. 16, for New York State. He had been in Kewanee for several weeks staying with his sister, Betty Leazenby, and visiting with relatives and friends. He is planning on being in New York visiting with his children and their families until winter.

Pauline Scales was the guest of honor at a family gathering

Sunday. The occasion was in celebration of her 90th birthday and held in her home. Over forty members of her family and friends were able to stop by and wish her a very Happy Birthday.

Those persons who will be having birthdays next week (so please remember to give them your best regards) are: Cora Lynn Clemans, Ashley Garner and Carissa Ann Westphal, Oct. 23; Janet Calhoun, Ellei Kay, Kathy Masunas and Melanie Masunas, Oct. 24; Madisyn Douglass, Helen Hogan and Donna K. Woods, Oct. 25; Shayna Agnew, Heidi Eubner, Amanda Evers, Connie Tomerlin and Dustin Troutman, Oct. 26; Aryn Freels, Jaclyn Shaw and Angela Thomas, Oct. 27; and Nancy Carlson, Oct. 28.

There are four couples who will be celebrating their wedding anniversaries next week: Mr. and Mrs. Mike Doty, Oct. 23; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Konshak, Oct. 25; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Whalen III, Oct. 26; and Mr. and Mrs. Nub Brodgon, Oct. 28.
